

Assistant Professor of Audiology
Tenure Track Faculty Position

The DEPARTMENT OF SN in the Bachelor of Audiology degree program and in the Bachelor of Science in Communication Sciences degree program, as well as opportunities for mentorship of students in the Doctor of Communication Sciences and Disorders degree program. Responsibilities also include the development and/or oversight of significant lines of scholarly research, including conducting, publishing, and presenting at national and international levels, and submission of competitive extramural funding applications. Further, the individual appointed to this position will provide service to the Department, College, University, and the profession positively to the overall mission and atmosphere of the Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology.

REQUIREMENTS include an earned research doctorate (PhD) in Communication Sciences and Disorders or a related field from an accredited university, ABD considered.

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS include eligibility for or current state licensure from the Alabama Board of Examiners in Speech Pathology and Audiology (ABESP) or current certification from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA). A current certificate of clinical audiology is also required. ( )Tj0.001 Tc.7 (l)-7.c 0 Tw 3.157 0 -4.7 3atadin IrneACC

The DEPARTMENT OF SPEECH PATHOLOGY AND AUDIOLOGY at the University of South Alabama boasts 17 diverse, accomplished academic faculty and clinical faculty members serving students through didactic teaching, clinical practice, and research. The Department offers four degree programs: an undergraduate degree in Speech and Hearing Sciences, a master's degree in Speech-Language Pathology, Doctor of Audiology degree, and PhD degree in Communication Sciences and Disorders. Competitive salary and interprofessional setting are offered, including onsite USAHCA center, serving residents of the